

11 October 2024,

To all our current and past clients as well as our supporters,

SOPHIA ANDERSSSEN from TERRY ANDERSSSEN LAWYERS has been named as a finalist in the Women in Law Awards for Rising Star of the Year - SME Law

The Women in Law Awards is the benchmark for excellence, recognising the best and brightest women across the Australian legal industry. This prestigious national awards program presents an exceptional opportunity for leading women to showcase their achievements, attract more clients and propel their careers, on top of receiving the recognition they deserve.

The finalist list, which was announced on Tuesday, 24 September 2024, features over 264 high-achieving professionals and businesses across 28 submission-based categories.

Securing a place as a finalist is widely recognised as a remarkable achievement in the legal industry. It signifies the unwavering determination and commitment of individuals, teams and firms playing a pivotal role in propelling the industry forward.

Winners will be announced at a black-tie gala at the Crown, Melbourne on Thursday, 14 November 2024.

Lawyers Weekly editor Jerome Doraisamy extended his congratulations to all finalists.

“It’s an honour for us to host this annual celebration of the outstanding work being undertaken by female legal professionals across the country,” he said.

“While there remains a long way to go in addressing ingrained gender gaps, particularly on pay, there is also much to celebrate about progress being made. This event is one of those moments for celebration.”

“Congratulations to all of the finalists, and we look forward to seeing you on the night,” he said.

SOPHIA ANDERSSSEN, SOLICITOR at TERRY ANDERSSSEN LAWYERS said she was humbled to be recognised and proud to be named as a finalist in the Women in Law Awards 2024.

“TERRY ANDERSSSEN LAWYERS recognition for our excellent contribution to the legal industry reinforces the strength of our service and dedication to connecting with the community and engaging with clients,” she said.

The team,
